Are You Wiser

by Rabbi Dani Locker

DVAR TORAH

I have a great business idea. Check it out:

Have you heard of the game show called, "Are you smarter than a 5th grader?" My idea is a show called "Are you wiser than an angel?" In the show (hosted by Morgan Freeman for obvious reasons), people will be given life choices, and then see if they'd do a better job than one of the angels in the show. I'm still working on getting a number for the angel acting agency, they seem to be unlisted.

I know what you're thinking: "Angels are way smarter than any people could possibly be! They have access to all the information stored in the cloud!" The truth is, you'd be right. Though I've never given an IQ test to an angel, some have described them as pure thought. We can certainly assume no person ever could be as intelligent and knowledgeable as an angel.

But that wasn't the question.

The question was "Are you WISER than an angel." Listen to what this Midrash says. When God created the first people, the angels asked, "What's the deal with these creatures?" God answered, "Their wisdom is greater than your wisdom."

WOW!

People are wiser than angels? How can that be?

Wisdom is not the same thing as knowledge, smartness, brightness, understanding, smarts, precocity, cleverness, acumen, comprehension, wit, aptitude or brainpower (case in point, I had enough intelligence to look up those words in the thesaurus, but not enough wisdom to stop myself from typing them all). Wisdom is the power to make better decisions based on all the information you gather, and the maturity to know which decisions to act on and not to act on. So for example, someone really smart might be able to fool the teacher and cheat on a test. Someone wise will realize that it won't help them in the long run, and they'll gain more by working for their grade. Someone crafty might be able to sneak candy into their room without their parents knowledge, or read with a flashlight long after they should be sleeping. Someone wise will recognize that they are far better off following their parents' lead in deciding when to sleep and when to have treats.

Angels are way smarter than people are. But wisdom can only be gained through trial and error. Through failing. Then failing again. Angles don't fail. They can not become truly wise because they can not experience that painful, yet uplifting experience we get by getting knocked down and leaning to do it differently.

A few lessons from this: Don't assume just because you're smart that you know best, and if someone else is smarter than you, don't let that get you down either, because you may be wiser than they. Don't get discouraged by mess ups, failures and boo boos. They are annoying but they might just make you wiser than an angel.
